DEACON'S CORNER

In the Gospel parable a master intends to fire a dishonest steward for squandering the master's property. The master tells the steward to provide an account of his stewardship before he is fired.

The steward then develops a clever scheme to provide a job for himself after his firing. He proceeds to reduce what debtors owe the master in the hope that they will give him a job after he is fired. The master praises the steward not for his dishonesty but for his planning and resourcefulness in developing this scheme. Jesus points out that the steward and people of this world plan more for their earthly life than do the "sons of light;" in other words followers of God, plan for their eternal life.

When we meet Jesus we will have to give him an account of our earthly life. Have we been good and faithful stewards? Are we trustworthy in our use of material goods? Have we used material goods wisely to support our family, the church and the disadvantaged? Have we considered money or material goods and end in themselves? Is money our master? Are we most devoted to money or to God? The Gospel says we cannot serve both God and money.

The unjust steward carefully planned for his future after his firing. The Gospel says we should be even more prudent in planning for our eternal life. Followers of God who were trustworthy in handling the material goods of this world will be entrusted the valuables of eternal life.

Deacon John

RINCÓN DEL DIÁCONO

En la parábola del Evangelio un amo pretende despedir a un mayordomo deshonesto por despilfarrar la propiedad del amo. El patrón le dice al mayordomo que dé cuenta de su mayordomía antes de que lo despidan.

El mayordomo luego desarrolla un plan inteligente para proporcionarse un trabajo después de su despido. Procede a reducir lo que los deudores le deben al amo con la esperanza de que le den un trabajo después de que lo despidan. El amo elogia al mayordomo no por su deshonestidad sino por su planificación e ingenio en el desarrollo de este plan. Jesús señala que el mayordomo y la gente de este mundo planean más para su vida terrenal que los "hijos de la luz"; en otras palabras, seguidores de Dios, plan para su vida eterna.

Cuando nos encontremos con Jesús tendremos que darle cuenta de nuestra vida terrenal. ¿Hemos sido mayordomos buenos y fieles? ¿Somos dignos de confianza en el uso que hacemos de los bienes materiales? ¿Hemos usado sabiamente los bienes materiales para mantener a nuestra familia, la iglesia y los desfavorecidos? ¿Hemos considerado el dinero o los bienes materiales como fin en sí mismos? ¿Es el dinero nuestro amo? ¿Somos más devotos del dinero o de Dios? El Evangelio dice que no podemos servir a Dios y al dinero.

El mayordomo injusto planeó cuidadosamente su futuro después de su despido. El Evangelio dice que debemos ser aún más prudentes en la planificación de nuestra vida eterna. A los seguidores de Dios que fueron dignos de confianza en el manejo de los bienes materiales de este mundo se les confiarán los objetos de valor de la vida eterna
