DEACON'S CORNER

A Sunday school teacher asked her children, "Where does God live?" One small boy replied, "God lives in our bathroom. My Dad bangs on the bathroom door every morning and says, 'My God, are you still in there?'"

When we put God first,
all other things
fall into their proper place.

We may smile at this anecdote. On one level it is a cute story that conveys the simple truth of a child's misperception. But on another level, the story conveys a profound truth about the mystery of God. Where does God live? We Christians know our answer: "God lives everywhere." This means then, as strange as it may sound, that God lives even in our bathroom.

If we have a healthy spirituality, we will have a keen awareness of God's presence in the world. This awareness will color not only what we do, but also how we do it. It will give us a sense of freedom that others may find admirable or foolhardy. We Christians have a traditional name for this type of freedom: we call it detachment. We often think of detachment in terms of sin. We think of detaching ourselves from bad things like pride, jealousy, anger, and lust. But the truth is we can just as easily be attached to good things – for example, a good person or a good cause. Sad to say, some church ministers today are attached to their ministry; that is, they are addicted to their work. It should come as no surprise that good-hearted people do fall prey to workaholism, because workaholism can look a lot like dedication! We strive for detachment not for detachment's sake, but, as Wicks (an author) says, "So we can let go of our idols and risk meeting God anew each day." Detachment helps us to let go of anyone or anything that takes the place of God in our lives. Detachment does not mean, however, that we no longer care about people or the world. On the contrary, as Thomas Merton reminds us, detachment helps us "to discover and develop our spiritual liberty and use it to build, on earth, the kingdom of God." As I was writing this article Sandy (my wife) was looking over my shoulder and commented "are you writing this about yourself?" Well, that ended my writing. Time to ponder on her observation.

RINCÓN DEL DIÁCONO

Una catequista preguntó a sus hijos: "¿Dónde vive Dios?" Un niño pequeño respondió: "Dios vive en nuestro baño. Mi papá golpea la puerta del baño todas las mañanas y dice: 'Dios mío, ¿todavía estás ahí?'"

Podemos sonreír ante esta anécdota. En un nivel, es una linda historia que transmite la simple verdad de la percepción errónea de un niño. Pero en otro nivel, la historia transmite una profunda verdad sobre el misterio de Dios. ¿Dónde vive Dios? Los cristianos sabemos nuestra respuesta: "Dios vive en todas partes". Esto significa entonces, por extraño que parezca, que Dios vive incluso en nuestro baño.

Si tenemos una espiritualidad sana, tendremos una aguda conciencia de la presencia de Dios en el mundo. Esta conciencia coloreará no sólo lo que hacemos, sino también cómo lo hacemos. Nos dará una sensación de libertad que otros pueden encontrar admirable o temerario. Los cristianos tenemos un nombre tradicional para este tipo de libertad: lo llamamos desapego. A menudo pensamos en desapego en términos del pecado. Pensamos en desprendernos de cosas malas como el orgullo, los celos, la ira y la lujuria. Pero la verdad es que podemos apegarnos fácilmente a las cosas buenas, por ejemplo, una buena persona o una buena causa. Tristemente, algunos de los ministros de la iglesia hoy están apegados a su ministerio; es decir, son adictos a su trabajo. No debería sorprendernos que las personas de buen corazón sean presa de la adicción al trabajo, porque la adicción al trabajo puede parecerse mucho a la dedicación! Nosotros luchamos por el desapego, no por el beneficio del desapego, sino, como dice Wicks (un autor), "Para que podamos dejar ir a nuestros ídolos y arriesgarnos a encontrarnos con Dios de nuevo cada día." El desapego nos ayuda a dejar ir a cualquiera o cualquier cosa que tome el lugar de Dios en nuestras vidas. El desapego no significa, sin embargo, que ya no nos importen las personas o el mundo. Por el contrario, como Thomas Merton nos recuerda que el desapego nos ayuda a "descubrir y desarrollar nuestra libertad espiritual y usarla para construir, sobre la tierra, el reino de Dios." Mientras escribía este artículo, Sandy (mi esposa) estaba mirando por encima de mi hombro y comentó "¿Estás escribiendo esto sobre ti?" Bueno, eso terminó mi escritura. Es hora de reflexionar sobre su observación.

Continuará.
