Neither the day nor the hour...

It has been many years since I stopped studying formally at an institute, but I still remember the feeling of having to prepare for an exam. Do you still remember that feeling of adrenaline with some anguish when taking an exam? It was always good to know the exam date to be prepared. We were also interested in knowing what the exam would contain so we could focus on those chapters when studying. I remember in particular one teacher, Professor Langgrave, he told us that every week he would give us an exam, sometimes two and that these would be partial, but that when we least expected it he would give us the period exam, which covered 60 percentage of the grade.

At first, we were all very confident until we saw that the weekly exams were not easy, that they only consisted of 5 questions and that they did not take us more than 10 minutes to answer. Seeing that many failed those exams was when we began to take this subject very seriously. I can say that almost more than 20 years later, I still remember those classes and those topics. The challenge of not having a specific date for an exam is being prepared all the time. The bad thing about having a specific date for the exam is that you study only for the exam and then it is easy to forget what you have learned.

Jesus in the gospel reminds us "Watch, watch: for you do not know when the time is..." The Christian life is not about preparing ourselves only for an exam, or only for the final moment... but rather for us to live each day, for That is important that we are living each day, as best we can, knowing that we will have to give an account of how we live... because definitely whoever lives as an owner will feel that God comes to him like a thief who steals from him... but whoever lives as an administrator who knows He will have to give an account, he will live attentively and responsibly, and upon the arrival of the owner he will then cease his work and go to the festive banquet.

In this sense it is better to live prepared, it is better not to know the date of arrival or the exam, in this sense it is better to live every day. As it is read in many sacristies as a reminder for the priest: "Priest, celebrate this mass as if it were your first mass, as if it were your only mass, as if it were your last mass..." So, let us live each day, as if it were the first, the only or the last.

Fr. Everardo Cázares

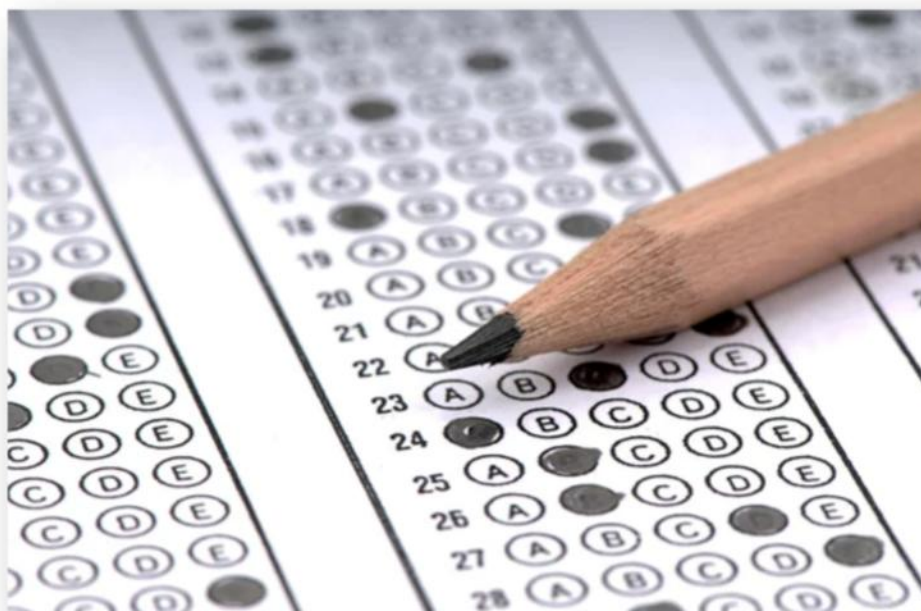

Ni el día ni la hora...

Ya hace muchos años que deje de estudiar de una manera formal en algún instituto, pero aún recuerdo la sensación de tener que prepararme para un examen. ¿Aun recuerdas esa sensación de adrenalina con algo de angustia al presentar un examen? Siempre era bueno saber la fecha del examen para estar preparado. También nos interesaba saber qué es lo que contendría el examen para enfocarnos en esos capítulos a la hora del estudio. Recuerdo en particular a un profesor, al profesor Langrave, él nos decía que cada semana nos pondría un examen, a veces dos y que estos serían parciales, pero que cuando menos nos lo esperábamos él nos pondría el examen de periodo, que abarcaba un 60 por ciento de la calificación.

Al principio, todos estábamos muy confiados hasta que vimos que no eran fáciles los exámenes semanales, que consistían solo en 5 preguntas y que no nos tomaba más de 10 minutos en contestarlo.

Al ver que muchos reprobaban esos exámenes fue cuando empezamos a tomar muy enserio esa materia. Puedo decir que ya casi más de 20 años después, aun sigo recordando esas clases y esos temas.

El reto de no tener una fecha concreta para un examen, es estar preparado todo el tiempo, lo malo de tener una fecha concreta para el examen, es que se estudia solo para el examen y después es fácil olvidar lo aprendido.

Jesús en el evangelio nos recuerda "Mirad, vigilad: pues no sabéis cuándo es el momento..." La vida cristiana no es para estar preparándonos solo para un examen, o solo para el momento final... sino más bien para que vivamos cada día, por eso es importante que estemos viviendo cada día, como mejor podamos, sabiendo que tendremos que dar cuentas de como vivimos... pues definitivamente quien vive como dueño, sentirá que Dios le llega como un ladrón que le robara... pero quien vive como un administrador que sabe que tendrá que dar cuentas, vivirá atento y responsablemente, y a la llegada del dueño entonces cesara en su labor y pasara al banquete de fiesta.

En este sentido conviene vivir preparados, conviene no saber la fecha de la llegada o del examen, en este sentido es mejor vivir cada día. Que como se lee en muchas sacristías como recordatorio para el sacerdote: "Sacerdote celebra esta misa como si fuera tu primera misa, como si fuera tu única misa, como si fuera tu ultima misa..." Así pues, vivamos cada día, como si fuera el primero, el único o el ultimo.

Fr. Everardo Cázares

The entire Advent, which begins today, is sealed with a tone of blessed hope. Hope is not simple illusion; Hope is not a simple project. Hope is born at the very edge where hopelessness is also born, that is, where we know crudely and deeply what we are and what we would like to be. From the living awareness of what we are we learn the distance to what we want to be. Both things are perceived in Isaiah's meditation: "we sinned and were always rebellious to you" (Is 64:5): this is what we have been; "Yet, Lord, you are our Father" (Is 64:8): this is the beginning of what we can be.

From here we learn several things. First: our sin does not destroy our bond with God. Sinners as we are, we are still in his hands, and he is still our potter. Sin does not nullify the sovereignty of God. Second: the one who made us is the one who knows how to remake us. There is no other alternative for man, because there is no other Creator. Third: if justice appears in the consequences of sin, grace and mercy shine in the victory over sin. Therefore there is no way to escape from God. As He himself said to Saint Catherine of Siena: "they are in my hands for justice or mercy."

Todo el adviento, que hoy empieza, va sellado con un tono de bendita esperanza. La esperanza no es simple ilusión; la esperanza no es simple proyecto. La esperanza nace en el borde mismo en donde nace también la desesperanza, esto es, allí donde sabemos cruda y profundamente qué somos y qué quisiéramos ser. Desde la conciencia viva de lo que somos aprendemos la distancia hasta lo que queremos ser. Las dos cosas se perciben en la meditación de Isaías: "nosotros pecábamos y te éramos siempre rebeldes" (Is 64,5): esto es lo que hemos sido; "sin embargo, Señor, tú eres nuestro Padre" (Is 64,8): este es el principio de lo que podemos ser.

De aquí aprendemos varias cosas. Primera: nuestro pecado no destruye nuestro vínculo con Dios. Pecadores como somos, seguimos estando en sus manos, y él sigue siendo nuestro alfarero. El pecado no anula la soberanía de Dios. Segunda: el que nos hizo es quien sabe rehacernos. No haya para el hombre otra alternativa, porque no hay otro Creador. Tercera: si en las consecuencias del pecado aparece la justicia, en la victoria sobre el pecado brillan la gracia y la misericordia. Por ello no hay modo de escapar de Dios. Como Él mismo dijo a santa Catalina de Siena: "en mis manos están para justicia o misericordia".

DEACON'S CORNER

This weekend our Advent journey towards Christmas begins a time of reflection on where we are in our relationship with God. Advent is a penitential season as we await the coming of Our Lord. Advent is like a little Lent. It's a time to take stock of ourselves and our relationship with God. It's a time to repent of those things in our lives that separate us from God. As a sign of this penitential nature the clergy wear purple and the sanctuary is not decorated as festively as at other times during the year. Our music is more somber. We don't sing the Gloria.

In our first reading the prophet Isaiah laments that the people have turned away from God and as a result God has turned His face from the people. As one author says the relationship between God and the people has broken down. Isaiah confesses that the people have turned from God. They have sinned and all their works are unclean. Isaiah reminds God of all the good things God has done for the people. Isaiah confesses the people's sins. He also confesses that God is our Father and we are like clay in the hand of the potter. In later passages he proclaims that God is so powerful that he could make the mountains quake. Isaiah confesses to God that we are the works of His hands he asks God do not let your anger go too far, do not remember our guilt forever.

Advent is a time to take stock of our relationship with God. Have we followed His ways? Is there anything we need to repent of? Have we turned away from God in any way? Has our relationship with God broken down in any way?

As has been the case for several weeks the Gospel reminds us to always be ready for the coming of the Lord. We do not know when Jesus will return. May He not find us sleeping not fulfilling our duties when he returns! Stay awake! We do not know the time or the hour! If we need to go before God and ask him to repair our relationship with Him Advent is the perfect time to do it. May we like Isaiah say God do not remember our guilt forever.

Peace

Deacon John

RINCÓN DEL DIÁCONO

Este fin de semana nuestro camino de Adviento hacia la Navidad comienza un tiempo de reflexión sobre dónde nos encontramos en nuestra relación con Dios. El Adviento es una temporada penitencial mientras esperamos la venida de Nuestro Señor. El Adviento es como una pequeña Cuaresma. Es un momento para hacer un balance de nosotros mismos y de nuestra relación con Dios. Es un momento para arrepentirse de aquellas cosas en nuestras vidas que nos separan de Dios. Como signo de esta naturaleza penitencial, el clero viste de púrpura y el santuario no está decorado tan festivamente como en otras épocas del año. Nuestra música es más sombría. No cantamos el Gloria.

En nuestra primera lectura, el profeta Isaías lamenta que el pueblo se haya alejado de Dios y, como resultado, Dios ha apartado su rostro del pueblo. Como dice un autor, la relación entre Dios y el pueblo se ha roto. Isaías confiesa que el pueblo se ha apartado de Dios. Han pecado y todas sus obras son inmundas. Isaías le recuerda a Dios todas las cosas buenas que Dios ha hecho por el pueblo. Isaías confiesa los pecados del pueblo. Él también confiesa que Dios es nuestro Padre y nosotros somos como barro en la mano del alfarero. En pasajes posteriores proclama que Dios es tan poderoso que podía hacer temblar las montañas. Isaías confiesa a Dios que somos obra de sus manos, pide a Dios no dejes que tu ira llegue demasiado lejos, no te acuerdes por siempre de nuestras culpas.

El Adviento es un tiempo para hacer un balance de nuestra relación con Dios. ¿Hemos seguido sus caminos? ¿Hay algo que necesitemos arrepentirnos de? ¿Nos hemos alejado de Dios de alguna manera? ¿Nuestra relación con Dios se ha roto de alguna manera?

Como viene sucediendo desde hace varias semanas, el Evangelio nos recuerda que debemos estar siempre preparados para la venida del Señor. Nosotros no sabemos cuándo regresará Jesús. ¡Que no nos encuentre durmiendo sin cumplir con nuestros deberes cuando regrese! ¡Mantente despierto! ¡No sabemos el día ni la hora! Si necesitamos ir ante Dios y pedirle que repare nuestra relación con Él. El Adviento es el momento perfecto para hacerlo. Que podamos, como Isaías decir, que Dios no se acuerde de nuestra culpa por siempre.

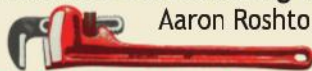

Paz
