Knowing how to recognize and act in time gives us freedom...

We live in a world that increasingly has us so absorbed in ourselves that we are losing many capabilities, some of these capabilities are understood by the progress of technology, such as no longer remembering telephone numbers, important dates, or even addresses, which we understand, technology has made our lives much easier and that's what it's all about. But it also has a very dangerous side effect, it is taking away our ability to recognize important moments and people. More and more people prefer to save an image on their cell phone rather than an experience in their heart.

In the time of Advent, we are invited to be able to recognize what is important in our lives, to know how to recognize Jesus when he comes and for this, it is important to know how to recognize today what enslaves us and prevents us from living in love and freedom. Perhaps the greatest thing about John the Baptist is that he knows how to recognize someone greater than him.

And how do we prepare ourselves to recognize Jesus Christ? The recommendations that John gives us in today's gospel have full importance today. John taught by his example, which consisted of austerity and prayer, what repentance and being righteous are. These four things are what we need: a sober life, without attachment to luxuries or vanities; a prayerful life, which gives God back his rightful place; a humble life, which recognizes that we have failed many times, and a just life, which pays special attention to the rights of the little ones and the dispossessed. Let me tell you a story that can help us recognize our attachments and when making a decision can give us the peace and freedom we seek.

There was a man who had a parakeet that knew how to talk and his livelihood depended on it, so he knew how to take advantage of it and exploit it for his benefit. Inside a cage the parakeet asked passersby's name and when the parakeet repeated his name they gave him a coin. A holy man who had the gift of speaking with animals was passing by that place. This parakeet begged him to help him get his freedom. The man, full of compassion, tried to negotiate the purchase of the parakeet, explaining that he wanted to set it free. The owner flatly refused, since it was his business. The holy man addressed the parakeet and in his language told him, "You are imprisoned by your tongue." The parakeet was able to recognize that what filled him with pride was also the same thing that had him imprisoned, so he stopped talking. Soon the man got tired and released the parakeet.

If we could recognize our ties or at least recognize what God offers us, we would leave everything and follow him.

Fr. Everardo Cázares

Saber reconocer y actuar a tiempo nos da libertad...

Vivimos en un mundo que cada vez nos tiene más ensimismados en nosotros mismos que estamos perdiendo muchas capacidades, algunas de estas capacidades se entienden por el progreso de la tecnología, como lo es el ya no recordar números telefónicos, fechas importantes o incluso direcciones, lo entendemos, la tecnología nos ha facilitado en mucho la vida y de eso se trata. Pero también tiene un efecto secundario que es muy peligroso, nos está quitando la capacidad de reconocer los momentos importantes y las personas. Cada vez son más los que prefieren guardar en su celular una imagen que en su corazón una experiencia.

En el tiempo de adviento se nos invita a que seamos capaces de reconocer lo importante en nuestra vida, de saber reconocer a Jesús cuando venga y para ello es importante saber reconocer hoy lo que nos esclaviza y nos impide vivir en el amor y en la libertad. Quizá lo más grande de Juan el Bautista es que sabe reconocer uno más grande que él.

¿Y cómo nos preparamos uno para reconocer a Jesucristo? Las recomendaciones que nos da Juan en el evangelio de hoy tienen plena importancia el día de hoy. Juan enseñó con su ejemplo, en que consistió en austeridad y la oración, lo que es el arrepentimiento y el ser justos. Esas cuatro cosas son las que necesitamos: una vida sobria, sin apego a lujos ni vanidades; una vida orante, que devuelva a Dios el lugar que le corresponde; una vida humilde, que reconozca que hemos fallado muchas veces, y una vida justa, que preste atención especialmente a los derechos de los más pequeños y de los desposeídos.

Déjame te platico una historia que nos puede ayudar a saber reconocer nuestros apegos y al tomar una decisión puede darnos la paz y libertad que buscamos.

Había un hombre que tenía un perico que sabía hablar y de él dependía su sustento así que sabía aprovecharlo y explotarlo para su beneficio. Adentro de una jaula el perico les preguntaba el nombre a los transeúntes y cuando el perico les repetía su nombre estos le daban una moneda. Pasaba por ese lugar un hombre santo que tenía el don de hablar con los animales, este perico le suplico que le ayudara a conseguir su libertad, el hombre lleno de compasión trato de negociar la compra del perico explicando que quería ponerlo libre. El dueño rotundamente se negó, pues era su negocio. El hombre santo se dirigió al perico y en su idioma le dijo, “estas encarcelado por tu lengua” el perico fue capaz de reconocer que aquello que le llenaba de orgullo era también lo mismo que lo tenía encarcelado así que dejo de hablar. Al poco tiempo el hombre se cansó y libero al perico.

Si fuéramos capaces de reconocer nuestras ataduras o por lo menos de reconocer lo que Dios nos ofrece dejaríamos todo y lo seguiríamos.

Mother Cabrini: First American citizen to be canonized

Maria Frances Cabrini was the youngest of 13 children born in 1850 in the small village of Sant' Angelo Lodigiano, Italy. She followed her parents' wishes and trained to be a teacher in a convent boarding school at Arluno. Her parents died when she was 18, and Frances discerned a call to religious life. She applied to two religious congregations but was refused because she had been ill with smallpox.

So, she taught in a private school until 1874 when the Bishop of Lodi asked her to help at a small orphanage in Codogno. Editor Michael Walsh writes in Butler's Lives of the Saints that the bishop then asked her to turn its staff into a religious community. Several recruits joined her, and in 1880 she founded the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart dedicated to the education of Christian girls. Some years later, the bishop of Piacenza suggested that Mother Cabrini, as she was known, should go to the U.S.

to work among the Italian immigrants. She had always wanted to do missionary work in China, so she rejected his suggestion.

When the Archbishop of New York sent her a formal invitation, Walsh writes that she consulted with Pope Leo XIII, who told her to go "Not to the East, but to the West."

In 1889, she and six sisters crossed the Atlantic to organize an orphanage and an elementary school for Italian children in New York. Sadly, they were not welcomed. The archbishop withdrew his invitation because he felt the work was not suitable for women and suggested she and her sisters return to Italy. Richard McBrien writes in Lives of the Saints that Mother Cabrini said, "No. The Pope sent me here, here I must stay."

At that time, there were 50,000 Italian immigrants in New York, many living in poverty and apart from the church. Mother Cabrini and her sisters received no support from the diocese as they taught the children, visited the sick and fed the hungry. As the sisters' reputation grew, McBrien writes that local shopkeepers donated to their mission. Sarah Gallick writes in The Big Book of Women Saints that Mother Cabrini was blessed with a gift for bringing out generosity in others; she also shrewdly negotiated with landowners and contractors.

Mother Cabrini opened orphanages and schools in New York. She also founded a hospital. For the next several years, she established foundations in Chicago and New Orleans. Her mission spread to Italy, Costa Rica, Panama, Chile, Brazil, France and England with 67 houses of her congregation throughout the world. She became an American citizen in 1909.

Mother Cabrini, a petite woman, battled ill health all her life. She had difficulty learning English and spoke with a heavy accent.

Mother Frances Cabrini died in Chicago on Dec. 22, 1917. Canonized by Pope Pius XII in 1946, she was the first American citizen to be canonized. She was named the patroness of immigrants by Pope Pius in 1950. Her feast day is observed on Nov. 13 in the U.S. (Dec. 22 in the rest of the world). Mother Cabrini's legacy lives on in the 16 countries where her Missionary Sisters live and work.

DEACON'S CORNER

This weekend we celebrate the Second Sunday of Advent. Christmas is fast approaching! Are we ready to receive Him into our hearts? Or are we preoccupied with decorating, planning and attending parties and buying gifts?

In the Gospel St. John the Baptist proclaims a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sin. Multitudes come to him acknowledging their sins.. John, dressed in the attire of a prophet, speaks of one to come who is mightier than he. John says I baptize you with water as a sign of your repentance. You see his baptism did not forgive sins. That had to wait for one mightier than John who would baptize with the Holy Spirit. John is not even worthy to undo the sandals of the one to come, something a slave would normally do for their master. John is not even worthy to be a slave of the one to come.

The one to come, Jesus was conceived by the Holy Spirit in the womb of His Mother the Blessed Virgin Mary as described in the Gospel for the Solemnity of the Immaculate Conception, celebrated last Friday, which celebrates the conception of Mary preserved from Original Sin (not the conception of Jesus as some mistakenly believe even though the Gospel for that feast describes the conception of Jesus!).

Mary, our parish patron was preserved from Original Sin by a singular grace and privilege given to Mary by God through the preapplication of the merits of her Son and Savior Jesus Christ the one predicted to come by John. Mary the one later overshadowed by the Holy Spirit at Jesus' conception.

That Holy Spirit has spread throughout the world. The apostles received that baptism in the Holy Spirit at Pentecost. We receive it at our baptism when the priest or deacon says "I baptize you in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit." We receive the fullness of that Holy Spirit at Confirmation.

May the peace of Christ, the grace of the Holy Spirit and the prayers of the Immaculate Conception be with you all. Amen

Deacon John

RINCÓN DEL DIÁCONO

Este fin de semana celebramos el Segundo Domingo de Adviento. ¡La Navidad se acerca rápidamente! ¿Estamos listos para recibirlo en nuestros corazones? ¿O estamos preocupados por decorar, planificar y asistir a fiestas y comprar regalos?

En el Evangelio San Juan Bautista proclama un bautismo de arrepentimiento para el perdón de los pecados. Multitudes vienen a él reconociendo sus pecados. Juan, vestido con el atuendo de un profeta, habla de uno que vendrá y que será más poderoso que él. Juan dice: Yo los bautizo con agua en señal de su arrepentimiento. Verás, su bautismo no perdonó los pecados. Eso tenía que esperar a alguien más poderoso que Juan que bautizara con el Espíritu Santo. Juan ni siquiera es digno de desatar las sandalias del que vendrá, algo que normalmente haría un esclavo por su amo. Juan ni siquiera es digno de ser esclavo del que ha de venir.

El que vendrá, Jesús fue concebido por el Espíritu Santo en el vientre de su Madre la Santísima Virgen María como lo describe el Evangelio de la Solemnidad de la Inmaculada Concepción, celebrada el pasado viernes, que celebra la concepción de María preservada del Pecado Original (¡no la concepción de Jesús como algunos creen erróneamente a pesar de que el Evangelio de esa fiesta describe la concepción de Jesús!).

María, nuestra patrona parroquial, fue preservada del Pecado Original por una gracia singular y un privilegio otorgado a María por Dios mediante la preaplicación de los méritos de su Hijo y Salvador Jesucristo, aquel que Juan predijo que vendría. María, la que más tarde fue eclipsada por el Espíritu Santo en la concepción de Jesús.

Ese Espíritu Santo se ha extendido por todo el mundo. Los apóstoles recibieron ese bautismo en el Espíritu Santo en Pentecostés. Lo recibimos en nuestro bautismo cuando el sacerdote o diácono dice: "Yo te bautizo en el nombre del Padre, del Hijo y del Espíritu Santo". Recibimos la plenitud de ese Espíritu Santo en la Confirmación.

Que la paz de Cristo, la gracia del Espíritu Santo y las oraciones de la Inmaculada Concepción estén con todos ustedes. Amén

Diacono John
