DEACON'S CORNER

Bury the dead, part 3

Leaving all the decisions for funeral arrangements until after your death places a great burden on your loved ones at a time when they are in grief and not at their best. It is therefore both prudent and kind for you to plan ahead. This week we look at what the Church teaches about how the body is to be treated in death.

The body was the temple of the Holy Spirit and Jesus was buried and rose bodily. More fundamentally, to be human is to be both a physical and spiritual creature. Humans are unique in this fact. Animals are physical creatures and angels are spiritual creatures, but only humans have both a body and a soul. Catholics believe in the resurrection of the body; that just as Jesus today still has his glorified body, we also will have a body for all eternity; because to be human is to have a body.

Because of our belief in the resurrection, the Church has always held that the body of a person is to be treated with dignity and respect. We bury the dead in consecrated ground or tombs. There's a funeral, and then a rite of committal as the body is laid to rest.

The Church has recently permitted the cremation of remains, but this does not mean that the cremated remains are to be treated with any less honor. There are many strange practices that Catholics should absolutely avoid. Scattering of ashes is forbidden. You are not allowed to divide ashes among family members. Ashes are not allowed to be kept at home. Ashes may not be used to make jewelry. Ashes are to be treated just as a body. There should be a Rite of Committal as the ashes are placed in consecrated ground or a tomb. Catholics should understand what the Church teaches so family members aren't left in the position of having to ignore the final requests of the deceased or violating the teachings of the Church.

Blessings and peace, Deacon Steve

RINCON DEL DIACONO

Enterrar a los muertos, parte 3

Dejar todas las decisiones sobre los arreglos funerarios para después de la muerte supone una gran carga para los seres queridos en un momento en que atraviesan el duelo y no se encuentran en su mejor estado anímico. Por ello, planificar con anticipación es un acto tanto prudente como bondadoso. Esta semana analizamos lo que la Iglesia enseña sobre cómo debe tratarse el cuerpo tras la muerte.

El cuerpo fue templo del Espíritu Santo; además, Jesús fue sepultado y resucitó corporalmente. Más fundamentalmente, ser humano significa ser una criatura tanto física como espiritual. Los seres humanos son únicos en este aspecto. Los animales son criaturas físicas y los ángeles son criaturas espirituales, pero solo los seres humanos poseen cuerpo y alma. Los católicos creen en la resurrección de la carne: así como Jesús conserva hoy su cuerpo glorificado, nosotros también tendremos un cuerpo por toda la eternidad, pues ser humano implica tener cuerpo.

Debido a nuestra creencia en la resurrección, la Iglesia siempre ha sostenido que el cuerpo de una persona debe tratarse con dignidad y respeto. Sepultamos a los difuntos en tierra consagrada o en tumbas. Se celebra un funeral y, posteriormente, un rito de sepelio al depositar el cuerpo para su descanso final.

Recientemente, la Iglesia ha permitido la cremación de los restos, pero esto no significa que las cenizas deban tratarse con menor honor. Existen muchas prácticas extrañas que los católicos deben evitar a toda costa. Está prohibido esparcir las cenizas. No está permitido repartir las cenizas entre los familiares, ni conservarlas en el hogar, ni utilizarlas para confeccionar joyas. Las cenizas deben tratarse exactamente igual que un cuerpo. Debe celebrarse un rito de sepelio al depositar las cenizas en tierra consagrada o en una tumba. Es importante que los católicos comprendan las enseñanzas de la Iglesia para evitar que los familiares se vean en la difícil situación de tener que ignorar las últimas voluntades del difunto o de contravenir las enseñanzas eclesiásticas.
